HOW DO COMMUTER BENEFITS WORK?

Commuter benefits are an employer-offered benefit that lets you use your tax-free dollars to pay for your commute. The IRS allows you to deduct up to $230 per month/$2,760 per year from your tax-free salary to pay for mass transit use. You can also deduct an additional $230 per month/$2,760 per year for qualified commuter parking.

By enrolling in the program, you get to take home more money each month, which can add up to big annual savings just by traveling to and from work. You will pay less tax and save more money. It's that easy.

Here is an example of how you save:

	Without TransitChek	With TransitChek
Monthly Salary	$3,017	$3,017
Pretax TransitChek Deduction	$0	$460
Salary Subject to Taxes	$3,017	$2,557
Payroll Taxes	$839	$679
Standard Transit Expense	$460	$0
Take-Home Pay	$1,718	$1,878
Monthly Savings	$0	$160

As you can see, an employee deducting the full $230 a month for mass transit and deducting the full $230 a month for commuter parking can receive savings of $160 per month or over $1,900 per year¹.
